Master of Science Degree in Criminal Justice
Community Corrections Cohort

New Cohort Class Starting January 2016

Central Connecticut State University
Department of Criminology & Criminal Justice

The Community Corrections Cohort is designed for professionals working in the areas of probation, parole, community-based treatment, and related fields. Students will progress through the program together, creating a supportive learning environment and opportunities to build professional relationships. Classes are offered year round in this accelerated program to facilitate completion of the degree in two years. The curriculum will emphasize evidence-based practices in community corrections and classes will be scheduled to accommodate working professionals.

Comments from cohort 1 graduate students:

- “...a perfect program for the working person in community corrections.”
- “Once a week works... that is a selling point of the cohort.”
- “Excellent professors that were enthusiastic, informative and helpful.”

Qualified students will be admitted on a first come, first serve basis.

To learn more about this exciting program please contact:

Raymond Chip Tafrate, Ph.D. at: Tafrater@ccsu.edu