Central Connecticut State University is a university of the Connecticut State University System. Central Connecticut State University is committed to a policy of non-discrimination, equal opportunity and affirmative action for all persons regardless of race, color, religion, sex, age, national origin, marital or veteran status, sexual orientation or disability.
We care about the safety and welfare of all who use CCSU and commit ourselves to help maintain a safe and secure environment. While no campus can totally isolate itself from crime, CCSU takes reasonable measures to diminish crime related risks. The principal measures involve several departments on the campus and include:

- A full range of preventive and investigative services provided by an internationally accredited police department
- Designs of buildings and grounds that support a safe campus environment
- A campus judicial program that encourages responsible behavior
- The use of security technology such as access control systems and closed circuit television
- Crime prevention education
- Critical incident planning
- A caring and committed staff to support students

Jason B. Powell
Chief of Police

The Jeanne Clery Disclosure of Campus Security Policy and Campus Crime Statistics Act (Clery Act) is a federal law that requires colleges and universities to disclose information about crime on and around their campuses. The act is named in memory of Jeanne Clery, a 19-year-old Lehigh University freshman who was assaulted and murdered in her residence hall room on April 5, 1986. This report has been prepared to meet the requirements of this Act.

Central Connecticut State University’s annual Clery Report includes institutional policies concerning campus security, such as policies concerning alcohol and drug use, crime prevention, the reporting of crimes, sexual assault, and other matters. You may obtain a copy of this report by contacting the University Police Department at 1615 Stanley Street, New Britain, Connecticut (06050) or you can download the report here.

The report also presents statistics for the previous three years concerning reported crimes that occurred on campus; in certain off-campus buildings owned or controlled by the University; and on public property within, or immediately adjacent to and accessible from the campus.

Central Connecticut State University Police Department (CCSUPD)

The CCSU Police Department reports to the president of the University through the chief administrative officer of the University.

The CCSU Police Department exists to advance the mission of the University by helping to ensure a safe, healthy and stable work and learning environment. We are committed to carry out this role in a manner that respects and protects the rights of all individuals to learn, create, grow, live, and work in an atmosphere of mutual respect. For us, “quality” not only reflects the kind of service we pledge to provide, but also describes the kind of life on campus we endeavor to protect.

Public safety is the business of every student, faculty member, and staff person at the University. And, although the Police Department provides the bulk of public safety services to the University community, there are several other departments on campus whose work is critical to an effective public safety program. Therefore, an important role of the police administration is to act as a safe campus advocate and to share ideas that help shape the public safety dimensions of the services, programs and policies of these other public safety “stakeholders.”

1st in Connecticut

The CCSUPD is the first university police agency in Connecticut to achieve international accreditation through the Commission on Accreditation for Law Enforcement Agencies (CALEA).

Authority of the CCSU Police Department and its Officers

The CCSU Police Department is a fully functional police agency with the same statutory authority as any municipal police department in the State of Connecticut. The Department is responsible for, and its primary mission is, the protection of lives and property at CCSU.
As is the case at all of Connecticut's major public universities, the CCSU Police are armed police officers with full authority pertaining to arrest, search and seizure. CCSU officers exercise their authority off campus as well, depending upon the seriousness of the offense or in support of a request for assistance from a neighboring police department.

CCSU’s officers are also members of the administration at CCSU and thus have authority to refer student misconduct to the Campus Judicial Coordinator.

The police are on campus and on call 24 hours a day, 365 days a year. Their duties include, but are not limited to:

- Patrolling the University around the clock.
- Responding to a full range of emergency and routine calls for service
- Crime prevention/education activities
- Investigation of crimes on campus
- Enforcement of state criminal and motor vehicle laws, and campus regulations.

Police Officer Selection and Training

The staff of the University Police Department consists of approximately 45 people, 23 of which are sworn police officers. Full time and part time civilian employees, including students, provide support in such functions as administration, communications, security, parking enforcement and fleet management.

All of our police officers are subject to the stringent requirements imposed upon all police officers in Connecticut. To be selected, potential police officers must pass a written examination, an oral interview, a background investigation that includes a polygraph examination, psychological and drug screening, as well as a physical fitness evaluation. Upon selection, recruits train with police recruits from municipalities across the state at the Connecticut Police Academy in Meriden. The approximately 19-week basic training course is supplemented by at least 10 additional weeks of field training. Once certified, officers must continue to undergo ongoing training in specified areas to maintain their certification. Similarly, our dispatchers must meet certification standards through training in the skills of managing a communications center.

Relationships with other Law Enforcement Agencies

Most of the CCSU campus is located within the City of New Britain in the State of Connecticut. The CCSU Police Department exercises primary police jurisdiction on the campus. Nevertheless, other municipal and state law enforcement agencies are empowered to exercise their authority on the campus as well, just as CCSU officers may exercise some authority elsewhere in the State.

The University and its police department have longstanding and positive relationship with the New Britain Police Department, other municipal police departments, the Connecticut State Police, and various federal law enforcement agencies. The CCSU Police Department is also part of a regional compact wherein police departments pledge aid to one another in times of need. Thus, when acting at the request of another jurisdiction, CCSU’s officers have the same authority in that jurisdiction as that possessed by the agency requesting assistance.

Preparation of the Clery Report

The Records Manager at the CCSU Police Department is responsible for gathering the statistical data used in the preparation of this report. He or she relies upon the computerized records system of the CCSU Police for the bulk of this information. However, a written request for statistical information is also made annually to various deans, directors and department heads across the University. The CCSU Women’s Center and area police departments are similarly contacted for any information that may be relevant.

This Clery Report is published annually, around October of each year, by the CCSU Police Department via the CCSU Police website. An email is sent to every student and employee each year that includes a brief description of the report’s contents along with the address of the website where the report is published.

Reporting Crimes and Emergencies

Call 911 for Emergencies – Police, Fire or Medical

Whether you are a victim or a witness, you have the responsibility to report crime. If a crime occurs on or around campus, report it immediately to the police.

Crimes in progress and crimes that have just occurred should be reported by dialing 9-1-1 from any phone. Whenever possible, the actual victim or witness of the crime should call directly. First-hand information is always more accurate and complete. If someone merely gives you the information and leaves, please include this information. Emergency Telephones known as “Code Blue Telephones” are strategically located across the campus and are connected directly to the police dispatch center on Timely Warnings

In the event that a situation arises, that, in the judgment of the Chief of the CCSUPD, constitutes an ongoing or continuing threat, a campus wide “timely warning” will be issued. Depending upon the situation, one or more methods may be used for issuing warnings, e.g. postings, direct distribution of flyers, emails to students, faculty, staff, the campus’ student newspaper, and campus websites. CCSU also anticipates the acquisition of new mass notification technologies that will be used when necessary.

Required Policy Statement

The Clery Act requires a statement of policy concerning the monitoring and recording, through local police agencies, of criminal activity at off-campus student organizations which are recognized by the institution and that are engaged in by students attending the institution, including those student organizations with off-campus housing facilities.

CCSU does not recognize any student off-campus student organizations including any with off-campus housing facilities. Therefore, CCSU has no policy regarding the monitoring and recording of such facilities through the local police.

Crime Prevention Programming

- Education: The CCSU Police Department works closely with the Office of Residence Life to provide an up-to-date and meaningful presentation to the resident community about crime on the CCSU campus. Upon request, CCSU Police officers are available for presentations on rape, theft, and personal safety and the importance of not compromising the security of residence halls.
- R.A.D. Training: The CCSU Police Department offers training to interested people in the nationally recognized R.A.D. (Rape Aggression Defense) program.
- Police Log: A publicly accessible log of all crimes is available at police headquarters. As noted above, serious incidents may require notification of the campus community to help the police, or to help prevent further crimes.
- Safety Escorts: Using student workers, public safety assistants, or police officers, concerned students will be escorted within the campus.
- Facilities Upkeep: Facilities and grounds are maintained with safety in mind. The Facilities Management Department inspects campus facilities regularly, promptly make repairs affecting safety and security, and responds to reports of potential safety and security hazards such as broken windows and locks. The grounds crew of the Facilities Management Department regularly monitors and responds to problems in landscaped areas of campus that may cause a safety hazard, for example shrubbery that impedes lighting.

- Engraving: The Police Department will assist students in engraving items of value.
- Emergency Telephones: The University has installed many well-placed emergency telephones on campus that automatically dial into the police dispatch center on campus. The Connecticut State University System Office of Telecommunications tests these telephones periodically.
- Locked Residence Halls: Residence halls are locked 24 hours a day, seven days a week. Students gain entry to the residence halls by a card access system that closely monitors access of all people in these areas.
- Student Patrol: Students are employed by the Police Department to provide escorts and perform building security checks.
- I.D. Cards: All full-time students, faculty and staff have been issued photo-I.D. cards, which they are required to possess at all times, and must show upon request.
- Residence Hall Staff: Each residence hall has a full-time, live-in Director, with Residence Assistants on each floor.
- Access Control and Security Cameras: The University has invested significantly in the technology necessary to implement electronic access control and closed circuit television cameras.

Helpful Crime Prevention Hints

Here are some helpful hints to help you reduce the chance of becoming a crime victim:

- Do not prop open any exterior locked residence hall door. Even though propping the doors makes it easier for you to get back into the residence halls, you also have made it easier for unauthorized people to enter the building. You don't know whom you may be letting in, so for the safety of you and others in the residence halls, do not prop open any exterior doors!
- Lock your door when you leave and take your keys with you, no matter how long you will be gone—even when you go to the bathroom. It only takes a few seconds to be “ripped off”.
- Lock your door when you and/or your roommate are sleeping.
- Do not leave notes on your door telling the world that no one is in or when you will return. It’s an open invitation for theft.
- Keep wallets, purses, checkbooks and jewelry out of sight and locked up if possible. Do not keep large sums of money on hand, and routinely check your checkbook to see if any checks are missing.
- Keep a record of all your valuable items, noting description, serial number and approximate value of the items. In some cases you should consider taking pictures of them. These records should be kept in a secure location.
- Check with your parents’ insurance company to see if your property is covered under their homeowner’s policy while you’re living at school.
- Do not loan your room key, curfew key, or access control care to anyone. Do not attach your keys to your University ID. It’s another invitation for theft.
- Do not allow strangers into your room.
- Do not open your door unless you know who is on the other side, especially at night.
- Do not allow door-to-door salespeople to enter the residence hall or your room. Central Connecticut State University policy prohibits soliciting in any building without prior written approval from the University.
- Report any suspicious person or activity to the University Police, 832-2375

Student Responsibilities and Conduct

The cooperation and involvement of students in a campus safety program is absolutely necessary. The potential for problems in residence halls is reduced when students follow sound safety-oriented practices. The residence halls will quickly feel like home—but you have to remember that you are not home. You must assume responsibility for your own personal safety and the security of your personal belongings by taking simple, commonsense precautions.

In addition to taking care of yourself and your belongings, you need to look out for one another and to behave as good citizens. As citizens, students are also subject to all federal and state laws in addition to all University Regulations governing student conduct and responsibility.
LOCK YOUR DOORS!!!!!! DO NOT PROP DOORS OPEN!!!!!!

People who violate the law, whether on campus or elsewhere, are subject to arrest and prosecution - regardless of their status. Additionally, students who violate the law on campus (and sometimes off campus as well) may not only be subject to criminal prosecution, but also to the campus judicial process.

If the misconduct is plainly not a violation of the law, the offending student will be dealt with solely through the campus judicial process.

With respect to action by the CCSU Police, or any other police authority, this means that students have the same responsibility to obey the law - on and off campus - as any other citizen.

Please see the CCSU Student Handbook for detailed information on student conduct.

Alcohol and Drugs

The University has a strong commitment, not only to a safe campus, but also to an environment that supports the development of healthy lifestyles. CCSU regards the abuse of drugs and alcohol as inappropriate behaviors that are inconsistent with the goals of the University. In support of this view the University has promulgated restrictive policies regarding the possession and use of drugs or alcohol on campus. Education and counseling programs support these policies. Where necessary, the University may impose administrative sanctions or even criminal sanctions – where there are law violations.

The policy statements related to alcohol and other drug abuse may be found in the Student Handbook.

In addition to possible violations of University policy, the CCSU Police, as well as other municipal, state or federal agencies will enforce the laws pertaining to alcohol and drugs including statutes relating to underage drinking.

Alcohol or Drug Education

Please see the student handbook section related to this topic at: Counseling & Wellness.

Weapons

The possession or use of firearms, fireworks, dangerous weapons, or the possession of unauthorized chemicals is strictly prohibited, and in many cases also violates state or federal law.

Sexual Assault Issues at CCSU

Sexual assaults continue to be of great concern on campuses across the land. CCSU wants you to know the following about such crimes committed on our campus:

Sex Offenders Notification: The Campus Sex Crimes Prevention Act requires institutions to inform members of the campus community of the means by which you may obtain information about registered sex offenders who may be present on campus. The main web page for the CCSU Police contains links to the State of Connecticut sex offender registry. Additionally, in accordance with Chapter 969, Section 54-258 of the General Statutes of Connecticut, the CCSU Police Department keeps a record of all registration information transmitted to it from the Connecticut Department of Public Safety. This registration information is accessible to the public during the CCSU Police Department's normal business hours, which are 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Police Investigation: First and foremost, sexual assault is a crime. The CCSU Police will vigorously investigate all reported sexual assault crimes and will work closely with victims, other law enforcement agencies, and the prosecutor’s office to bring perpetrators to justice.

Education: Both the University Police and the Ruth Boyea Women’s Center offer presentations to educate students about sex offenses. The Student Affairs sponsored Orientation Program also addresses these issues. Lastly, the CCSU Police Department provides a training program (endorsed by the Women’s Center) offered at campuses across the nation. Titled Rape Aggression Defense (RAD), this program seeks to reduce victimization.

University Sexual Assault Protocols: These unequivocally state that sexual assault is a crime, as well as a violation of the conduct code.
Sanctions: In addition to arrest and the full processes of the criminal justice system student offenders are also subject to the campus disciplinary system for any assaults on campus grounds. Students may also be disciplined when the misconduct occurs at an official University event, at a University-sanctioned event, at an event sponsored by a recognized student organization, or under such circumstances that reasonable grounds exist for believing that the accused student poses a threat to the life, health, or safety of the University community or to the property of the University. Procedures and penalties are enumerated in the Student Handbook. Campus disciplinary procedures include provisions that allow both the accused and the accuser to have others present during the hearing, and to ensure that both are informed of the outcome of the proceeding including any sanctions that are imposed.

Reporting: While victims are encouraged to report crimes to the police, they may elect to instead seek counseling or mental health services, and may be assisted by these services or other campus authorities in reporting this crime to the police, and/or to University officials charged with enforcing the conduct code.

- If you happen to become a victim of acquaintance rape or of a sexual assault you should seek medical attention immediately. Do not wash, bathe, douche, change your clothes, or straighten up the area where the attack occurred. Call the Police, Sexual Assault Crisis Service, or simply go to a hospital emergency room. Do not keep the incident bottled up inside you; seek help from a support group and talk about it.

- Time is of the essence. Medical evidence needs to be collected within 72 hours of an assault in case you decide – now or later – to press charges. Collecting the evidence keeps your options open.

- If you are still wearing the clothing you had on during the assault, take a change of clothes with you to the hospital, as your clothes may be needed for evidence. If you have already changed, the clothes worn during the assault will be needed at the hospital. Do not transport the clothes in plastic bags or containers – to preserve the evidence use clean paper bags, clean sheets, or a clean pillowcase to wrap your items.

- Report all cases of acquaintance rape and sexual assault to the University Police Department even if you don’t wish to press charges. The information you provide to the University Police Department may be helpful in preventing further attacks and even lead to the arrest of the offender. In many cases the sex offender has a history of previous attacks and will continue until stopped. The most important point to remember is to get the medical attention and support you need.

Note: If you are a sexual assault victim the police will not reveal your name to others except as provided by law. Even court records are afforded some degree of protection. Similarly, if you choose to report your victimization to counselors, they will not reveal your identity to the police or others without your permission. The police and counselors may share some demographic data for purposes of crime statistics, but this does not include the victim’s identity.

Victims Rights: Immediately following a crime, victims have rights, including the rights to:

- Help in obtaining emergency care.
- Be notified about arrest and court proceedings. Arraignment may occur the day after the arrest. Contact the clerk of the court to check on status, court date and location.
- Timely disposition of the case after the arrest of an accused.
- Reasonable protection from the accused.
- Get information on services and agencies that help victims.
- Apply to the Office of Victim Services for crime-related financial assistance.
- Return of property that the police took for investigating the crime.
- Be treated with fairness and respect throughout the criminal justice system process.

Changes in Academic and Living Conditions: Options for, and assistance with changes in academic and living situations after a sexual assault incident will be considered on a case-by-case basis, if so requested by the victim.

What to do if you are a victim of a Sexual Assault:

In any emergency situation call 911.

If there is no need for either an emergency police or medical response ---

If the assault occurred off campus you should contact the local police department immediately for assistance.

At your request, the University Police will assist you with reporting the incident to the proper officials.

If the assault occurred on campus call the CCSU Police at 832-2375. We have both male and female officers and will try to honor any preferences in this regard even if it requires calling an officer at home.

Because sexual assaults seldom occur with witnesses present, physical evidence may be crucial in helping to establish the facts of the case or to link a suspect to the crime. Therefore, to the extent possible, the scene of the assault should be preserved for the police and you should seek medical attention before bathing.

Optional Reporting – If you do not wish to report this crime to the police, or would like assistance in doing so, you may contact any faculty or staff member of the University, the YWCA Sexual Assault Crisis Service, the Ruthe Boyea Women’s Center or the University Personal Counseling Services for help.

Note: If you choose to report the matter to the police, either directly or with assistance, they will begin their investigation immediately. This will maximize their chances of gathering the amount of evidence necessary to justify an arrest and conviction of the suspect. If you change your mind after making an initial report, the police will not compel you to proceed. Conversely, if you elect not to report the matter to the police initially, but change your mind later, you may do so. However, you need to appreciate that while the police will do their best, delays in beginning the investigation may result in lost physical evidence or otherwise diminish the ability of the police to gather the level of proof necessary to either arrest or convict a perpetrator.

Seeking University Disciplinary Action – If the person who assaulted you is a student, you may seek disciplinary action against this person through the Campus Judicial Coordinator. You may do this in conjunction with, or independently of, any other action you decide to take. The University Police will assist you in this process as well.
Crime Data

The crime data is displayed in a format that mirrors that required by the Department of Education and may differ from data reported under federal or state Uniform Crime Reporting (UCR) programs. The difference exists because the Department of Education requires the inclusion of information that is not reportable under the UCR programs. The data that is presented here includes all crimes reported to the CCSU Police that occurred on the CCSU campus, in the residence halls on campus, as well as crimes that may have been reported to other campus authorities. To give a broader picture of crime on campus and its immediate environs, this data also includes crimes committed at campus remote facilities as well as those occurring near the campus. Hate crime statistics, and arrests and/or referrals for campus disciplinary action are also included.

Do Something Important With Your Life
Definitions
These definitions are used in the Department of Education publications:

- Murder/Non-negligent manslaughter: The willful (non-negligent) killing of one human being by another.
- Negligent manslaughter: The killing of another person through gross negligence.
- Forcible sex offenses (including forcible rape): Any sexual act directed against another person, forcibly and/or against that person’s will; or not forcibly or against the person's will where the victim is incapable of giving consent.
- Non-forcible sex offenses: Unlawful, nonforcible sexual intercourse.
- Robbery: The taking or attempting to take anything of value from the care, custody, or control of a person or persons by force or threat of force or violence and/or by putting the victim in fear.
- Aggravated assault: An unlawful attack by one person upon another for the purpose of inflicting severe or aggravated bodily injury. This type of assault usually is accompanied by the use of a weapon or by means likely to produce death or great bodily harm. Simple assaults are excluded.
- Burglary: The unlawful entry of a structure to commit a felony or a theft. Attempted forcible entry is included.
- Motor vehicle theft: The theft or attempted theft of a motor vehicle. A motor vehicle is self-propelled and runs on the surface and not on rails. Motorboats, construction equipment, airplanes, and farming equipment are specifically excluded from this category.
- Arson: Any willful or malicious burning or attempt to burn, with or without intent to defraud, a dwelling house, public building, motor vehicle or aircraft, personal property of another, etc.
