Educational Leadership Ed.D.

Program Rationale

The doctorate in educational leadership (Ed.D.) is designed for delivery to cohorts of full-time educational professionals on weekends, evenings, and during the summer. The Ed.D. is based on the premise that learning takes place through an integration of course work and experiences that stem from a clear conception of leadership, the knowledge base of the field, and a structure that allows doctoral students and faculty to collaborate on shared work improving education in the State of Connecticut.

The Ed.D. includes two distinct strands that support the learning needs of two different groups of educators. The PreK-12 strand has many innovative features and serves teachers and administrators in PreK-12 education who want to prepare for a variety of leadership positions: principals, lead teachers, department heads, curriculum and assessment specialists, assistant superintendents, and superintendents.

The higher education strand serves professionals employed in higher education institutions who aspire to a wide range of leadership positions in academic or student affairs at two- or four-year institutions.

Program Learning Outcomes

Prior to defending their dissertation proposals all doctoral students must document mastery of learning outcomes and show their ability to;

1. demonstrate an ethical and moral commitment to collaborative work that promotes positive learning for all members of the organization;
2. demonstrate the ability to foster best practices with the understanding that teaching and learning are at the heart of the organization’s mission;
3. connect the immediate work of organizational improvement to the larger philosophical, political, and historical context, and to the organization’s mission;
4. establish a commitment to social justice through their work and act in ways that promote social justice in their organizations;

5. utilize evolving technologies to improve organizations, enhance learning, and build institutional identity.

6. foster continuous organizational improvement grounded in the collection, analysis, interpretation, and application of data;

7. locate, interpret, and assess relevant educational research and apply it to both practice and the design and conduct of research;

8. document mastery of learning outcomes in an individually defined area of specialization (higher education strand only).

Admissions

To be considered for admission to the Ed.D. in Educational Leadership, applicants must have earned a master's degree in an appropriate discipline or professional field and have professional goals that are consistent with the goals and beliefs of the program.

Admission to the PreK-12 strand of the program is available in alternate years for a cohort of 25 students. The deadline for submission of applications is December 1.

The following minimum criteria have been established for admission into the PreK-12 strand of the Ed.D. Program:

1. Master's degree from a regionally accredited institution of higher education in a discipline or professional field that is relevant to the Ed.D. Program
2. 3.00 GPA on all graduate coursework
3. Two positive letters of reference from leaders in education familiar with the applicant's work
4. Detailed resume that illustrates important work-related experiences
5. Acceptable scores on the Graduate Record Examination (within five years of admission and including a writing assessment)
6. An acceptable personal statement covering three important topics:
   a. Career goals
   b. Reasons for pursuing a doctorate
   c. Ability and commitment to devote four weeks to summer study for the first two summers of the program and some additional on-campus summer study during the third or fourth summers
7. If selected as a finalista satisfactory interview with the admission committee.

Admission to the higher education strand of the program is available for a cohort of 25 students. The deadline for submission of applications is October 1.

The following minimum criteria have been established for admission into the higher education strand of the Ed.D. Program:

1. Master's degree from a regionally accredited institution of higher education
2. 3.00 cumulative GPA on all graduate coursework
3. Two positive letters of reference from leaders in higher education familiar with the applicant's work
4. Detailed résumé that illustrates important work-related experiences
5. Acceptable scores on the General Test of the Graduate Record Exam (within five years of admission and including a writing assessment)
6. An acceptable personal statement covering four important topics:
a. Career goals
b. Reasons for pursuing a doctorate
c. Ability and commitment to study in the cohort schedule
d. Initial thoughts about potential areas of specialization that would support career goals

7. If selected as a finalist, a satisfactory interview with the admission committee.

Admission Process
The application packet for each Ed.D. strand is available through the Ed.D. Program website. Admission decisions are made by a faculty admissions committee.

Program of Study
The Ed.D. program includes four major components: (1) an 18-credit required core in educational leadership; (2) a 15-credit specialty area; (3) a 16-credit series of inquiry-oriented seminars; and (4) the dissertation component (14 credits). These components and the credits required in each component are summarized below.

Component I
Core in Leadership (18 cr.)

Component II
Specialty Area (15 cr.)

Component III
Inquiry Seminars (16 cr.)

Component IV
Capstone: Dissertation and Dissemination (14 cr.)

Total: minimum 48-63 cr.

PreK-12 Strand
Component I establishes the foundational core of the program with particular emphasis in educational leadership and teaching and learning. Five core courses are required of all candidates: EDF 700; EDL 701, 702, 705 (6 cr.); and EDT 700. All courses in the core are open only to PreK-12 strand Ed.D. students.

Component II includes a specialty area of the student's choice. Two specializations are available:

- Administrative Leadership. This specialization is for students who aspire to administrative positions in public schools. It could lead to certification for intermediate administrator (a State of Connecticut certificate) and/or the superintendency.
- Curriculum and Literacy. This specialization is for students who plan leadership careers in PK-12 settings, such as reading, and curriculum specialists. It includes courses in literacy, curriculum, and instructional leadership.

Component III of the program includes research courses, field-based inquiry projects, and a series of seminars designed to help students understand the processes of inquiry. Component III leads into and facilitates Component IV.
Component IV includes completion of the dissertation and dissemination of the results to appropriate audiences. Special course work in research and ongoing inquiry projects culminate with the completion of the student's dissertation. More information about all of these components is available on the program website.

Please note that students in the PreK-12 strand take 10 credits during each of the first two summers in the program, and additional courses during evenings and some Saturdays during the first two academic years. During the third year and beyond, the focus is on dissertation requirements, including some on-campus study during the last summer or winter session of study.

Higher Education Strand

Component I establishes the foundational core of the program with particular emphasis on the history and context of higher education, teaching and learning in higher education, leadership, organizational theory, and resource management. Six courses are required of all candidates: EDF 700, EDL 705 (3 cr.), 730, 731, 732, and 733. All courses in the core are open only to Ed.D. students in the higher education strand.

Component II is the 15-credit individually defined area of specialization developed early in the program and assessed in the pre-dissertation portfolio review.

Component III of the program includes research courses, field-based inquiry projects, and a series of seminars designed to help students understand the processes of inquiry. Component III leads into and facilitates Component IV.

Component IV is the completion of the dissertation and dissemination of the results to appropriate audiences. Special course work in research and ongoing inquiry projects culminate with the completion of the student's dissertation. More information about all of these components is available on the program website.

Candidate Assessment

The curriculum of the Ed.D. program is aligned with applicable professional and accreditation standards and with the program learning outcomes. During the second year of the program, each Ed.D. candidate completes a summative electronic portfolio which uses a variety of evidence (artifacts, evaluations, projects, and reflections) to document mastery of program learning outcomes. Prior to being granted the Ed.D. degree, each candidate completes a dissertation.

Individually Defined Specialization (15 cr.)

During the first year of the program, each higher education strand candidate will work with a designated faculty member with relevant expertise to propose a coherent specialization that supports the student’s career goals. The specialization proposal must be approved by the strand coordinator. Learning in the specialization will be assessed in the pre-dissertation portfolio review.

Academic Rationale

The higher education strand of the Educational Leadership Ed.D. program at Central Connecticut State University is intended to provide graduates with an understanding of theory and research, teaching and learning, and leadership and to develop skills in research and inquiry that enable them to apply this knowledge to solve persistent educational problems in higher education. Using a cohort learning design, the program will support individuals who aspire to a variety of leadership responsibilities in higher education, enabling them to improve institutional productivity and provide effective leadership and service to their institutions and the wider community of stakeholders.

To meet changing societal expectations, higher education needs to change in ways that are not yet well-defined. Shifting expectations, evolving technologies, a changing clientele, and a challenging fiscal environment will require creative and nimble action in higher education institutions. This program seeks to prepare higher education leaders who understand teaching and learning, are committed to creating effective and socially just learning environments, and have the understanding of research and organizational inquiry skills required to strategically lead complex institutions of higher education in new directions.

Because candidates will study with a variety of higher education professionals, all candidates will develop an understanding of the many elements that are required to create an effective student-centered, learning-centered higher education institution. Organizational change in higher education is easy to discuss but difficult to implement; as such, candidates will engage in actual organizational learning and change activities throughout the program to facilitate their integration of theory and practice and to strengthen their understanding of the realities of leadership in higher education.

Demand rationale

The higher education strand is intended to serve mid-career professionals employed at two or four-year higher education institutions who seek to enhance their leadership capacity. Over the past 10 years, we have had numerous requests for doctoral programming from this audience and our focus groups this spring indicate that there is a strong demand for the program from staff at both community colleges and four-year institutions.
Change description to: Permission of the program director. Students will work in an environment directly related to the regional specialization or global studies program, under supervision of an International Studies faculty member. Classroom portion and written reports are required.

Master of Science in International Studies (30 credits)

Program Rationale:

The Master of Science in the International Studies program educates students in several key areas of the world: Middle East, Africa, Asia, Europe, Latin America, and Global Studies (focused on a global theme). Students are grounded in theories of internationalization, history of diverse countries and regions, cross-cultural issues, and features of various international cultures and are provided programmatic, analytical, and practical skills to address international issues. The program prepares specialists to work in governmental and non-governmental organizations within and outside of the United States to address issues related to the global human experience.

The International Studies Master’s program is designed to produce individuals competent in understanding the interrelated nature of global phenomena, confident in their membership in a community of global citizens, and capable of fulfilling various professional positions related to the field of International Studies. To further these overarching goals, the learning outcomes of the graduate program concern the student’s ability to express these competencies in formal essays (including a thesis or capstone project) and presentations of research projects and policy positions. Graduates of the Master’s program will:

- demonstrate tolerance of and insights into the diversity of cultural values, beliefs and worldviews;
- demonstrate advanced proficiency in the history, culture, and language(s) of a particular world region;
• demonstrate detailed knowledge of the interconnectedness of global phenomena;
• critically approach social, political, and economic cultural issues of a global nature;
• collect and analyze data on several projects of a global scope or which relate to a particular world area;
• produce and defend an extensive scholarly paper (thesis or capstone project), based on primary research, that focuses on a single world area or links diverse world areas in a global theme;
• demonstrate international competency, theoretical mastery, use of literature, data, evidence, and argument at an advanced level in the scholarly paper.

A MS degree in International Studies prepares students for a range of career opportunities in government, in non-profit foundations and NGOs, in for-profit entities, and in a wide range of other institutions offering services transnationally or otherwise working in global environments.

In addition to the regular admission requirements, an applicant for the MS in International Studies program must send a resume and an essay that addresses his/her past experiences, career goals, and the region in which he/she wishes to specialize (select from African, East Asian, European, Latin American, Middle Eastern, and Global Studies). Each application must be sent electronically or by mail to the International Studies Director.

Early applications are encouraged for full consideration. The admission deadline for spring semester is November 1, and May 1 for fall semester.

2. Geographical Areas and Global Themes (18 Credits)

Students will select 6-12 Credits from each of the program’s two focuses, for a total of 18 credits.

Geographical Areas:

12 credits for students who wish to develop a primary focus in a particular world geographical area.
9 credits for students who wish to balance area and global focuses.
6 credits for students who wish to complement their primary focus on a global theme.

Courses listed below are for advisory purposes only. Additional courses may be identified with the approval of the advisor. For example, IS 550 (Internship in International Studies), IS 590 (Course Abroad), IS 596 (Independent Studies in International Studies), IS 597 (Seminar in International Studies), HIST 580 (Seminar in Non-Western World History), and HIST 585 (Modern World History) could be included in each area depending on the topic of those courses when offered.

* For any course designated HIST 4XX, graduate students must register for HIST 495 to receive graduate credit.

3. Research and Capstone Requirements (6 Credits)

Plan A: IS 598 Research in International Studies and IS 599 Thesis in International Studies
Plan C: IS 598 Research in International Studies and IS 595 Special Project in International Studies

4. Language and/or Study Abroad Requirements

The International Studies program requires that all students have a level of proficiency in reading, writing, speaking, and understanding of a single modern language other than English, preferably relevant to the area of geographical specialization, equal to the completion of the 226 level. Fulfillment of this requirement will be determined by a CCSU instructor of the language, the Chair of the Modern Language Department, or a CCSU faculty member designated by the director of International Studies.

In addition to the language requirement, IS students without significant life or study experiences abroad are strongly encouraged to participate in a study abroad program, whether a course abroad or a semester or summer exchange. Information about study abroad programs is available at the Center for International Education in Barnard Hall.

NOTE: No more than nine credits at the 400 level, as approved by the graduate advisor, may be counted toward the graduate planned program of study. Initially, on acceptance to the program, students are assigned to the International Studies Curriculum Coordinator for advice. As soon as possible, students will be assigned an advisor appropriate to their area or global specialization. This advisor will normally serve as the faculty member supervising the student’s thesis or special project.

Thoughts for next year: The existing PreK-12 strand in the EdD Program includes “intensive residency” experiences in the summer that are day-long and multi-day. These are included in the strand as summer courses, and are highly valued by faculty and students in the program. The EdD faculty are working out ways to include similar residencies in the new Higher Education Strand being developed. The Grad Studies Policy Committee is, in parallel, considering what manner of school-wide residency requirements would apply to any and all of its doctoral programs, including, but not conflicting with, those of the existing and proposed EdD strands.

SCHOLARSHIP- Chair: David Sianez

Members: Mike Voight, Marian Anton, S. Seider (ex-officio) (additional members welcome).

There was a brief update on the Foundation Scholarship. Since the process is not complete, there was nothing else to report.

APPEALS- Chair: Ralph Cohen

Members: Jeff Thomas, S. Seider (ex-officio) (additional members welcome) – NONE

ONLINE INSTRUCTION- Chair: Gustavo Mejia

Members: Clayton Penniman, Barry Sponder, David Oyanadel (additional members welcome.)

This committee promotes on-line delivery of best practices among graduate faculty, offers support to faculty interested in online delivery, proposes procedures for application to teach online, and proposes policies relative to online course, etc. with an invited member of ITDRC to serve on committee.

The committee will be meeting next week. They also applied for development grant for Quality Matters. They also supplied software, training and met with some online courses to give support.

New Business:

Demonstration of WebEx and Camtasia: Dr. Gustavo Mejia and Mr. David Oyandel

WebEx https://connscu.webex.com Access is free, it was purchased by the Board of Regents. Faculty/staff who have worked here more than three years need to contact the Help Desk or IDTRC for an account. More recent hires can create their own accounts.
Camtasia: David showed Camtasia remotely. It captures screen, camera, and voice. This demo was created to show how Camtasia is used to create the video presentation, and how WebEx allows it to be shown to multiple people, such as for a class. The completed video clip can also be uploaded to be shown through Media Player, etc. These programs are all mobile responsive and accessible anywhere there is an internet connection. Students were pleased with WebEx because it gave the physical feeling of seeing the instructor and allowed them to see their classmates. They also liked the ability to be able to watch the mini-lectures as needed. This is an excellent tool for teaching online.

Thank you to Kim Farrington for her excellent work as GSC secretary this past year. Kim was a stickler for accuracy and always cheerful in fulfilling her responsibilities as secretary. We could not have functioned so well without her and I greatly appreciate her efforts!
